Facility Info:
Momentum's chain of climbing gyms is based in the Salt Lake City, UT area, with plans for expansion throughout the US.

"My experience with Futurist Climbing was everything I hoped it would be: great customer service, spot-on technical advice during the design phase, and a lightning fast install which minimized climbing downtime for our customers. Most importantly the floor works – our customers love it. Even old dudes like me can boulder over such a plush landing. Thanks Timy, Ernest and everyone else at Futurist Climbing from your friends at Momentum Indoor Climbing!" -JP

5,800-sf wall designed by Futurist, built by Walltopia
2,300-sf of bouldering flooring
1,200-sf of roped, kids area & training area flooring

"The most significant thing I learned [during the design process] was that more climbing area was not necessarily the best use of the space. There are many things we didn't know or consider until Timy pointed them out. It is essential that the designer has your best interest in mind. Both Timy and Ernest are extremely knowledgeable, personable, and accessible." -SJA

"Having an outside party design our climbing walls was one of the best things we did! After trying to work with the larger wall companies and not being able to get them to hear our ideas, it was amazing to work with Futurist Climbing and actually be on the same page. Timy, Ernest, and Brandi are nice, easy people to deal with and I will be using them on our next project!" -KB

"I'm a do-it-yourself kind of guy, especially when I was attempting to launch a start up climbing facility. I attended meetings with advisors to try and prepare financials and a business plan. Soon, I was in over my head and turned to Futurist to take me to the next level. They spent countless hours compiling and analyzing information about my market, and came up with a business model that was more comprehensive than I ever could have produced." -JC

"The priorities for our bouldering flooring system were a uniform landing surface, vinyl, non-moveable and the longest warranty we could get. Quality flooring is not cheap. You get what you pay for, and after suffering through a sub-par flooring solution, we made it a priority to get the right solution at the outset of planning for our new facility.

Ernest with Futurist Climbing was helpful providing detailed product information and drawings through our flooring process. He listened to how we saw the space being used by climbers, incorporating its intended use into the final design. Installation took ½ a day and went smoothly with a Futurist installer and a few of our staff. Futurist is about making things right from the first measurement to the final installation.

We know many facilities have found success with bouldering and the dynamic climbing environment it facilitates. We all know there is work to do with educating boulderers about fall zones and falling techniques and Futurist's efforts to advance the industry in that level of sophistication is something we value. I personally love the Art of Falling video." -KH
